

WERTHEIM INC. BECOMES ENTERPRISE INFORMATION MANAGEMENT (EIM) INTERNATIONAL

NEW YORK, NY – July 8, 2005 – Wertheim Inc., a leading provider of information and document management solutions, announced that it has changed its name to Enterprise Information Management (EIM) International. The name change is effective as of July 1, 2005.

The new name better reflects the leadership position taken by EIM in its current and emerging markets. Building on the company's position since its founding in 1994, EIM will continue to provide products and services that effectively manage enterprise-wide information and consistently achieve competitive advantages. As part of this name change, the company will begin an aggressive branding campaign.

“EIM's team has spent the last 12 years helping to manage information across global enterprises, and our new name better reflects our experience and leadership in an area deemed mission-critical by many organizations,” said Josh Wertheim, founder and President.

“As EIM we will continue to leverage the deep technical skills of our staff to deliver solutions that drive competitive advantage,” said Peter Lieber, EIM's Vice President. “Our clients are in the legal, financial, corporate and government sectors. In this sphere, our unique mix of information management product and service expertise cannot be matched.”

EIM is expanding its product sales internationally throughout Europe, the Middle East, and Africa, while continuing to grow its base in the United States. Future plans include expansion into the Far East, where many of its current clients have offices. EIM will also focus on deepening its exposure in multiple technology markets that complement the company's experience in enterprise information management.
